

HIGH COUNTRY LOCAL FOOD SUMMIT

Building Diverse Community Networks to Grow the Local Food Economy

PRESENTED BY

The Goodnight Family Sustainable Development Program at Appalachian State University with generous support from Mazie Jones Levenson

March 26, 2009

9 am to 5 pm
At the Apple Barn in Valle Crucis

In conjunction with the Summit, we are pleased to present a nationally recognized keynote speaker

“An Evening with Joel Salatin”

March 26 at 7 pm at Farthing Auditorium

Please join us for a day of education, collaboration, and inspiration as we identify opportunities to increase access to fresh, healthy food for all members of our community. The Summit will feature first-class presentations from Joel Salatin, Tim Will, and Tom Philpott and ample opportunity for networking and planning. And, of course, good food!

No matter what your interest— farming, government policy, food culture, land use, community service, entrepreneurship, social justice and equity, youth engagement, healthy eating and wellness, or natural resource conservation— we all stand to benefit from a vibrant local food economy.

Whether you're a long-time local food advocate or simply interested in learning more— everyone with a vested interest in the High Country food system is invited to participate!

Seating is limited, so reserve your space now!

For an agenda, directions, registration and other details
please call 828-262-7248 or visit <http://susdev.appstate.edu/>

Event sponsors: Blair Farm, Blue Ridge Women in Agriculture, Maverick Farms, New River Organic Growers, Valle Crucis Conference Center, and Watauga County Cooperative Extension

Appalachian
STATE UNIVERSITY

The Goodnight Family Sustainable Development Program is a unit within Appalachian's University College. University College consists of the university's integrated general education curriculum, academic support services, residential learning communities, interdisciplinary degree programs and co-curricular programming – all designed to support the work of students both inside and outside of the classroom. Appalachian State University is committed to providing equal opportunity in education and employment to all applicants, students, and employees. The university does not discriminate in access to its educational programs and activities, or with respect to hiring or the terms and conditions of employment, on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, creed, sex, gender identity and expression, political affiliation, age, disability, veteran status, or sexual orientation. The university actively promotes diversity among students and employees.